Of the priming of the Moon for ablastration,

THE Moon is said to be Primed, when she is 3 days and 12 hours old.
And it is to be observed, that ancients have delivered for a truth, that such young Cattel as are weaned between the time of the Change, and the end of the Prime, viz. until the Moon be Primed as aforesaid, will be subject to turning and giddiness in the head.

Of the Epact, and how to find the Moons age.

AS the annuall circuit of the Moon, every year commeth too short of the Sun by eleven daies, so by adding these elevens yearly one to another, and casting away thirty, the remainder is called the Epact, which taketh its beginning yearly the first day of March:

To know the age of the Moon by the said Epact.

ADd unto the said Epact the number of months, from the beginning of March, together with the month wherein you seek, and also the number of daies past, of that same month wherein you seek, and the sum of this addition will yield you the just age of the Moon. As for Example, I would know the age of the Moon the seventeenth day of January, 1659. The Epact is 17, the number of months 11. the daies of the month wherein you seek, 17. which added, make 45. whereof 30. subtracted, there remaineth 15. the just age of the Moon that very day, and this Addition or Change of the Epact begins the first of March.

AERIS Mutatio.

Predictions of the weather are found to be so various and uncertaine; especially in an Island, as England, Scotland and Ireland, because in one day so many sorts of weather. For the vaporous mixture of the Sea, and the mutabilitie of the winds, permit no certainty (as experience daily teacheth;) And often commeth an unexpected wind, yet none knoweth from whence it commeth, or whether it goeth: and carries that spungy Nubes into a far remote Climate, and so the Predictor is deluded, and reputed but a Mend--ax, though never good Smith in his life. So concluding with Cato; Mis to arcana Deo, &c.

For the hour of the Night,

The Moon shining upon any Sun diall, mark her shadow, and if it be past the hour of 12. add thereunto the Moons southing, gotten by this Table, and the same is the hour of the night; but what hours and minutes it wants of 12 subtract from the Moons southing, and the remainder is the hour of the night. You must subtract so many minutes as there be halfe hours past 12. and add so many minutes as be halfe hours, as the shadow wants of 12.

An Appendix or latter part of this Almanack, containing a True and Compendious Description of the worthy County of Salop, and also of the Famous Shire-Town, namely Shrewsbury; with very many necessary Rules, perfect Tables, and notable Observations, most pleasant and profitable, fit for all sorts of men.

By Francis Pigot Philomath.

A very Profitable Invention, for the Speedy Planting of an Orchard of Fruit-Trees.

ABout the 10th of June, the Sap being fully ascended into the Boughs, or tops of the Trees, which is the highest part thereof, let some discreet per on go up into the Tree intended, and with a very sharp knife cut the Bark round about some fruitful Bough of the same, twice, within 8 inches together; then take the Bark so cut clean off the said Bough, and wipe the Sap clean off the same bare place; then make a plaister of some very stiff clay, and wrap the said clay about the said bared place, about an inch thick or more, that it may stop the said Sap in its coming down; then put mosse upon the said clay, and bind it hard on with strings as you do grafts. So is it prepared for further Operation; then prepare a fit quantity of rank mould, and temper it with short muck, and mislin water, and make mortar thereof, and wrap a good quantity (almost as big as a Foot-ball) thereof upon the firm bark, close above the said clay, that it touch the same; then mosse it, and bind it as before, very fast and well, and let it remain growing on the same Tree untill the latter end of January; then with a fine saw cut it off close below the said stiff clay, not breaking the same; and then set bough and all together in some good ground where you would have it to grow: And if it prove a fruitful year, it may (God willing) bear fruit the Summer next following. The reason of its growth, is, because the Sap cannot passe the clay, but stayeth in the rank mortar, and therein gathereth Roots that spring and grow: But speciall care must be taken in cutting, and setting of it, that it be not bruited, or diminished, &c.

A Typographical description of the Famous and Fruitful County of Salop; and also a true Demonstration of that Worthy and Wealthy Shire-Town called Shrewsbury, as it was Anno Domini 1637. But since that time much Impoverished by the Rigor of War, and Vileness of Souldiers.

Brave Salops Town, the Glory of our Sheer,
Thou lov'st the Crown, and so it doth appear.

S*alopia, quasi salus copia, sed Grammaticæ salutis copia:* The very name thereof intimating the Salubritie of the Soil, and the Commodities of this County, being Reputed to be one of the most Commodious Counties within this Kingdom; whose Scituation is Seated and Serled somewhat near to the Center thereof; but Warwickshire seem-

Lo Salop, thy Creator gives thee Blessings store, Serve him in fear, and give him thanks therefore.

This worthy County, by the Old Saxons was written, and called Scirpsfier, importing the inhabitants to be knowing people, which now we call Shropshire; it is bordered upon the East with Staffordshire, on the West with Denbigh and Mountgomery-shires, on the South with Radnor, Hereford, and Worcester-shires, and the County Palatine of Chester; on the North, it contains in length 40 Miles, in breadth 35 Miles, Pearches 80281600. and Acres 501760. If it were level ground: but its more, because its unlevel, and very hilly; it amounteth to more in quantity: its also divided into 15 Hundreds and Liberties, subdivided into 170. Parishes, watered with more then 18. large Rivers, besides many other smaller Streames; which Rivers have 13. strong Bridges for passage, 7. Forrests, 27. Parks, and some 16. Market Towns, wherein the Inhabitants may Traffick, and Commerce at their pleasure. Somewhat near unto the middle of this Commodious County standeth the County Shire-Town, namely Shrewsbury aforementioned, Beautiful as a precious Gemme set in a Ring of pure Gold, scituate upon a most pleasant Hill, having a most wholesome Aire, and delectable Prospect, almost invironed; or as it were peniuuliz'd with that Antient River Seavern, which took her Name from Sabrina, Daughter to King Lochrine, the Eldest Son of Brute. Thus this King Lochrine having married G'Wendolin,
B 2 Daugh-

A Description of Shropshire,

Daughter to Corineus, Duke of Cornwall; (by whom he had a Son named Madan) he also kept, as a Paramore, the beautiful Lady Estrilde by whom he had a Daughter named Sabrina: But after the death of the said Corineus, he put from him the said Gwendolin his Wife, and Wedded the said Estrild his Paramore. But the said Gwendolin repaired into Cornwall, where she raised a great Power, and fought with King Lochrine her Husband, and Slew him; he was buried at Troynovant; and she drowned the Lady Estrild, with her Daughter Sabrina, in that same River which we now call Seavern, or rather Sabrina, after the Maidens name therein thus drowned. This forenamed River doth most lovingly embrace this Famous Borrough, with the most clear and Transparent Armes of her dearest Love; as contented to suffer her very Intralls to be torn in sunder with the swift passage of many veliferous Vessells that approach her presence, so that she might be a special Benefactor to her best beloved Darling aforesaid. This Worthy Town containeth 5. Populous Parishes, and 6. fair Churches, within the Walls and without; whereof Saint Chades is reckned to be the Mother Church; which was then most costly beautified, in a most admirable manner. The said Churches were then well furnished with good Canonical and Religious Ministers, Condecorated with strong and lofty Towers, or else Pyramidall Steeples, having most Tuneable and sweet sounding Bells in the same. It hath also a most Sumptuous Free-School-House, then newly Erected, very spacious and ample, in all points, made and wrought up from the Foundation with the finest Free-stones, in Colledge forme, according to the most Accurate skill of the Artificer. The charges whereof hath amounted to the Value of about 3000 pounds; there is in it a fair Library, well furnished with variety of very good books, a large Globe, and an excellent pair of Planisphaers, very usefull for the performing of many rare and admirable and the Shire-Town Shrewsbury.

mirable conceits, and delightful conclusions. This worthy Town, right-well deserveth the Name or Title of a City, and for quantity and quality is no way Inferiour to many Cities, and is reputed to be the fairest Town within this Kingdom; it containeth 42. streets; the greater part thereof are large and spacious, the buildings are Beautiful and Procerous; the Inhabitants, for the most part, Vertuous, Godly, and Religious; many of them Right Worshipful, Worshipful, and most truly Generous; the rest, Tradesmen Wealthy, and Ingenious; and to conclude, all Valiant and Courageous. Yea, the Fidelity and Loyalty unto his late ROYAL MAJESTY, both by Town and County, (at his being there) being by these Salpians so faithfully performed, and really managed, I hope will not be forgotten.

Near unto this Renowned Borrough remaineth a very memorable place, where Anno Domini. 1401. was fought a most Furious and Bloody Battell by the Peircies, Henry surnamed Hotspur, and Thomas Earl of Worcester, against King Henry the 4. wherein the said Lord Henry was Slain, and the Lord Thomas taken and beheaded, with the losse of 6600. Soldiers on both the parts. This place is since called of some, the Old-Field, of others Battel-Field. In which (as it is Reported) were long after found abundance of rotten Arrow-Heads, and other such like Fragments in the ground, by Plowmen Plowing thereabouts, which were supposed to be used in the same service. It doth evidently appear by sundry signes, and apparent tokens, remaining in several parts of this County, that this shire hath heretofore been Dangerously perplexed with many terrible Broyles, and dreadful Battells. As first, by that strange Fortification and Bulwark, in a certain Common, usually called Mig-Forrest; but according to Antiquity Munk-Forrest, being somewhat more than two Miles Northward, distant from the Clee-Hill, where may be seen strong Artificial Mounts, continued in a treble Form of Degrees one above another, in an excellent manner, (observed and applauded by experienced Travellers;) it hath also large and profound Trenches for safety, answerable to the same. Also, that strange and Uncouth Vault at Bridgenorth, vulgarly called the Armitage.

Likewise that Remarkable place, not far from the said Town of Bridgenorth, vulgarly called Morfields-Heath, but Antiently named Mortfield-Heath, but more properly Murtherfield-Heath: the very name thereof intimating or importing, that some dreadful or bloody Battel hath in former time been there Fought. The like may truly be spoken of those two Huge and Monstrous Hills, namely Titterstone-Hill, and Wats-Hill, (not far distant from the Town of Ludlow) the one opposite to the other, also near each other, where may be seen on the top of each of them, as it were the Ruinous remainder or Reliques of a most strong Wall, long since battered to the very ground. Another such like Monument of Antiquity worth observation remaineth at Glebury Mortimer, near unto the Church, being a huge Mount or Bulwark, with a Circular Trench at the Foot of the same; Ordained by Sir Roger Mortimer, Knight, then Lord of the said Town, for the Defence and Safety thereof; with very many such like things, as in this small piece cannot be Expressed. Thee, and such like Assaults and Invasions caused the Inhabitants at that time to fortifie themselves with many strong Castles, firm Fortresses, and sure Bulwarks; whereof the greatest number are utterly Ruinated and quite Decayed. This fruitfull County is plentifully furnished with Pit-Coal, Iron, Stone, Lime-stone, Free-stone, Timber, Fire-wood, Wool, Wheat, Barly, and many other necessary sorts of grain; beauti-beautified with many lofty Hills, sometimes well Wooded, fruitfull Vales still well Manured, and goodly Halls curiously Builded; Wherein Hospitality hath been used, Charity allowed, Piety Practised, and Vice abandoned; the greatest Number, and thickest Rank whereof are Scituated between the foresaid Town of Shrewsbury, and the said Clee-Hill; about some five Miles distant from the forenamed Town Southward standeth a very Antient little Village, called Atton-Burnel; wherein, as Chronicles Report, King Edward the first held a Parliament, Anno Domini 1282. and many good Lawes and Statutes were there Enacted: Which at this day are called the Statutes of Atton-Burnell. At the East end of which Village standeth the Ruinous Remainder of a very large and lofty Castle, vulgarly called Atton-Burnell Cattle: And also adjoyning to the said Village there is a large Park - Stone walled about; wherein, near unto the Village, is a most pure spring of Water, Issuing North - Eastward out of a little Bank: this Well is Antiently called Sadowall; it is Walled about, and Paved in the bottom with fine Free-stone. What Extraordinary Operation it hath, I know not, unless it be (as it is supposed) a present Remedy for the soreness of the Eyes, as proceeding from some Rock of Copperas, or such like. But howsoever, in the Spring and Summer time it is often frequented with many persons of good sort and qualitie.

Aspice quanto hominum genus amplectatur amore. Opportuna tamen medicamina multa creavit. This Park belongs to the Hall of Langley the Hereditary House and Land of the Right Worshipful, Sir Richard Lee, Knight and Baronet (But all kept from him many years past, by the Rigorous Power of the former long Parliament:) He is a Worthy Member of this County, and Common-wealth. Some 4 miles distant Southward, from this Town of Shrewsbury, standeth a very memorable Village called

A Description of Shropshire, &c.

Pitchford, quasi Pitchfoord (as I suppose) because there is a little pool, on a private mans backside, that casteth up perfect pitch, which being ordered as it ought to be, may serve for ordinary use very well.

And that the truth of the Fidelity, Loyalty, Care and Obedience of these our Salopian Inhabitants, as aforesaid, may more truly and evidently appear, you may behold the Names of the chiefest Gentry of this County expressed in the next page, and taken out of a printed sheet of Paper, printed at Oxford, with his said ROYAL MAJESTIES approbation, expressed in these Words.

BRUTE, the Son of Silvius Posthumus, arrived in this Island, at a place called Totnes, in Devonshire, the year before the Nativity of our Blessed Saviour Jesus Christ 1108. and named it Britain, which before was called Albion, Ab albis montibus: And therein builded the noble City of London, and named it Troynovant, or new Troy. He divided this Island among his three Sons: To Lochrine his Eldest Son he gave the middle part of Britain, now called England. To Albanaet his second Son he gave the Countrey of Albany, so called then, now Scotland. And to Camber the youngest he gave the Province of Wales, then called Cambria: Whereupon arose this ancient Latine Adage, Cambey ego Cambrios, diligo jure meas. This BRUTE Reigned 24 years, and was buried at TROY-NOVANT, then so called, now LONDON: WALES, before called BRITAIN, came to be so named, thus. So many of the BRITAINS as were left alive after their great Slaughter, and losse of their Countrey, betook themselves for Refuge, into Woods, Mountaines, and Marshes: Which is the part they enjoy at this day: Which afterward the English men called WALES, and the said Inhabitants thereof Welch-men, who before were called BRITAINS. For among the GERMANS, the word WELCH-MAN, signifieth a strange man, Stranger, or an Alien: Or one having a contrary Language to theirs; as an ITALIAN, or FRENCH-MAN, or the like is counted to us.

800. MORGAN, King of CAMBRIA, now WALES, as aforesaid, was slain by CONEDAGUS his Nephew, in a place in WALES called GLA-MORGAN. This CONEDAGUS builded the Town of MINERVA, now called BANGOR.

863. King BLADUD builded BATHE; He builded there also a Temple to APQLLO; made hot Bathes and

and practised NECROMANCY, and presuming to fly in the ayre, brake his neck, on the Temple.

844. King LIERE builded CAIRELIRE, now called LEICESTER.

766. It Rained BLOOD, after which came multitudes of Venomous Flyes, which slew much people. King LUD builded LONDON from LONDONSTONE to LUDGATE, and named it LUDSTONE: he was buried neer Ludgate 69. years before Christ.

Now account since the Birth of our, Blessed Saviour.

LUDWALLUS, Prince of Wales, paid yearly unto King Edgar, in the name of a Tribute, 300. Wolves; by meanes whereof, within four years not one Woolf could scarcely be found in England and Wales. 938.

King Etheldred caused the Danes to be suddenly murdered upon a day and hour assigned: in memorial whereof, we light our Blazes upon Twelf Eve, in the beginning of the night. But this murder caused great misery to this Land; For Swain, King of Denmark, in revenge hereof, entred this Kingdom with a strong Army, and without mercy spoiled the same. --- 684.

Roger de Mountgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury, with a great Army of Welshmen, set forth from Shrewsbury, Shrewsbury, and did much hurt by Fire and Sword, in all places where they came, assaulting Worcester, and taking the Suburbs; but the courageous Citizens betaking themselves to the Castle Walls, Putting their Wives and Children into the Castle, put their cruell Enemies to repulse: who in revenge, burned the said Suburbs. 574.

But certain Rovers from the Isles of Orkney, whose Admirall was called Magnus, encountred the said Earl of Shrewsbury, and with an Arrow shot him into the Eye, it onely being bare and open; whereupon the said Earl fell dead out of his Ship into the Sea; which Magnus seeing, said in his Danish tongue, Leit loupe. Let him leap such another leap, and take the best. 564.

King William Rufus was slain with an Arrow, shot by Sir Walter Tirril Knight, (at a Hart) in the new Forrest of Hampshire, the first day of August; Whereupon the said Sir Walter mounting upon his Gelding, rode for his life. 562.

At the assaiging of Cardigan Castle, King Henry the second was in no small danger of his Life: For one of his Enemies shooting at him had pierced his body deeply, had not Hubert de Saint Clere, Constable of Colchester, seeing the Arrow coming, thrust himself between his Sovereign and the same, and so was slain therewith: Who desired this King to be gracious gracious unto his onely Daughter, and he dyed: which his Majesty performed most gratiouſly.

The noble Prince Henry, Earl of Richmond, valiantly marching with his Army to meet his mortal enemy King Richard the Third, was told that Sir Walter Herbert, and Rice ap Thomas, were in Arms ready to ſtop his paſſage, but it was contrary. The ſaid Earl acquainted Lady Margaret his Mother, Lord Stanley his brother, Sir Gilbert Talbot, and divers others, that he intended to paſſe over Severn at Shrewsbury forthwith, and ſo towards London: in his way to Shrewsbury, met him the ſaid Rice ap Thomas, with a goodly band of Welſhmen, who were for the ſaid Earl of Richmond. At Shrewsbury met him Sir Richard Corbet with 800. Gentlemen and others: who from thence, with a great Army of his, marched with the ſaid Sir Gilbert Talbot, and brought him to Newport; from thence to Stafford; where Sir William Stanley, half Brother to the ſaid Sir Richard Corbet, with more power met him; from thence to Pitchfield, ſtill increaſing his power: and marching Valiantly towards Bosworth, a little Village near Leiceſter, there met he with King Richard, and his Army: Where they fought a moſt terrible and bloody Battell. But the Duke ſlew the King, hand to hand, in open field: According to the deſire of the greateſt part. Upon which which Conquest, the said Duke was Crowned King of England in the field, and the dead Corps of King Richard was brought to Leicester, and there buried at the Gray-Friars Church. Since 172.

A Jew at Tewkesbury, by chance fell into a Jakes, upon the Saturday: And because it was the Jewes Sabbath, the said Jew would not be pulled out of the Jakes that day. The Earl of Glocester hearing thereof, would, not suffer him to be pulled out on the morrow, because it was his Christian Sabbath; but before Munday, the Jew was dead. Since 402.

Sir Rowland Hill, Mercer, and Lord Mayor of London, made Acham Bridge, and Terne Bridge; the one over Severn, the other over Terne. He builded a notable Free-School in Drayton in Shropshire, with Maintenance for a School-Master, and an Usher, having assured Lands in Drayton aforesaid, in value 22 pound per annum, for discharging thereof. Many more Worthy and Laudable Works he did, which here cannot be expressed. Since. 113.

Madock, of the line of LLewellin, another Captain of the Rebellious Welch, with a great Company set upon the Town and Castle of Carnarican, upon the Fair day, and burned the said Town and Castle, slaying a great company of English men, who came to the said Faire, not fearing any such thing. Since 651.

King Henry the third built Mountgomery
Castle. Since 567.

Earl Marshall, and LLewellin, Prince of Wales, wasted and robbed the borders near Shrewsbury, and burned part of the

A Prognostication

A Brief Rule to know your yearly expences, by your daily expences. Suppose you spend or disburse two pence a day, it cometh to two pounds, two half pounds, two groats, and two pence in the Year Viz. 31. 10d. the like you may reckon any other number of pence.

But because many that desire this practice of measuring, are not sufficiently experienced in Arithmetick, I have for their sakes, and for their aid, added this Table.

The use of this Table.

Find the breadth of your board or glass in the Column on the left hand, and over against the same, in a right line, you have the length of a foot in Inches, and parts of Inches.

Example, against 5 Inches is placed 28 Inches, and 9 parts of one Inch, and so much is the length of a foot.

Also 10 Inches, against which standeth 14 Inches, and 5 parts, so much is the length of a foot.

Likewise twenty Inches, against which is 7 Inches. 2 parts for a foot, and so of the rest.

This Table shews the Interest of any sum of money from one shilling to a 100 l. from a day to a year. And by a little addition may know the Interest of any sum whatsoever. Note, that for more exactness the penny is divided into 48 hundred parts; so that 25 parts are a farthing, 50 parts an half-penny, 75 parts 3 farthings.

For example, the Interest of an 100 l. for six months, one week, and one day, are thus found;

Interest of a 100 l. for six months 3 0 0 00

Interest of a 100 l. for a week 0 2 2 61

Interest of a 100 l. for a day 0 0 3 94

In all 3 2 7 55

That is 3 pounds, 2 shillings, 7 pence, halfpenny.

Simple Interest at Six in the Hundred.

It is found thus: Look for the year in the Table that he began to reign, which are 1116. to which adde the 25 years, which make 1141. which substract from this present year 1660. and the remainder is the time since, viz. 519. your desire; so the like for any other.
